

Layla Bush, a volunteer at The Green Buddha medical marijuana collective, vaporizes cannabis in a dedicated room of the shop in Seattle, Washington, May 22, 2012. She says vaping is her preferred way to medicate because she feels it quickly and it isn't harsh on her lungs like smoking. Bush was shot and injured in 2006 and the bullet remained lodged near her spinal cord where intractable pain continues to plague her, requiring use of a crutch.

Daniel Berman